

Are you taking a Porsche driving course?

Here's what you need to know about your car insurance.

Not all insurers accept this type of use.

Indeed, most insurers in Quebec categorically refuse to insure vehicles used on closed tracks, even when it's for advanced driving courses. Therefore, unless you have received written confirmation stating otherwise, it is very likely that you will have to personally assume any damage that occurs to your vehicle during a driving course.

We have received confirmation that an insurer currently agrees to cover the risk associated with vehicles participating in certain certified advanced driving courses (Driver's Education by Rennsport) offered by Porsche.

3 key things to remember:

1. Vehicle damage

Section 10 of Quebec's Automobile Insurance Act excludes any compensation for an accident occurring on a closed course not open to public traffic (training, demonstration, competition, etc.).

However, one of our insurers agrees to cover material damage claims that may occur during these specific Porsche driving courses, subject to certain conditions.

2. Injuries or death

The SAAQ does not compensate for injuries sustained during an event on a closed track, and these are not covered under your insurance policy.

3. Evolving acceptance conditions

Although one insurer currently agrees to cover this type of event, the market is constantly evolving. It is therefore essential to confirm this acceptance with one of our brokers at the time the policy takes effect and at each renewal. Please note that this acceptance applies only to Porsche-certified courses through RENNSPORT, and certain specific conditions apply.

Any other closed-track event (track day, rally, private event, lapping, etc.) is not covered.
